

Contex, Digitech Systems Offer Sizzling Summer Bundle for the Secure Archive of Large Format Scans

Save $1,000 with the popular scan and archive solution; offer ends August 31, 2023

Greenwood Village, CO and Chantilly, VA – June 14, 2023 – Digitech Systems, the world’s most trusted cloud information management provider, and Contex, the world leader in large format scanning, today announce a sizzling summer bundle for the secure information management of large format scanned assets. For a limited time, customers who purchase any Contex HD Ultra X or IQ Quattro X large format scanner can receive a license for Nextimage scanning software and three months access to the PaperVision.com Professional service, both free of charge. The introductory offer — a savings of more than $1,000 — is available until August 31, 2023.

“The scanning industry is as strong as ever, as more companies are prioritizing the digitization of their hard-copy assets for remote access. By collaborating with Digitech Systems, Contex customers can have a seamless method for securely storing these valuable assets,” comments Steve Blanken, General Manager, Contex.

“Information security is in a spotlight,” comments Christina Robbins, Vice President of Strategic Communications, Digitech Systems, “and paper records are at risk. When Contex scanners are used in combination with PaperVision.com, important records can be quickly and automatically protected by a company’s security protocols. This special promotion bundle puts everything needed for better security within reach for every business with hard copy records.”

Secure Archive of Large Format Scanned Assets

The secure archive of large format scanned assets is made possible with Digitech’s PaperVision.com service and Contex scanners with Nextimage scanning software. PaperVision.com is an intelligent service that uses metadata — created from a variety of options including the file name, other file properties, and even the folder structure where the document originated — to immediately protect the scanned documents according to a company’s established access rules and IT security protocols.

Reprographic shops, architectural firms, document management providers, and more can benefit from the scan and archive solution from Contex and Digitech Systems. The combined solution is ideal for those operating in the office or from remote locations.

For the sizzling summer bundle, customers can choose between the IQ Quattro X or the Contex HD Ultra X large format scanners. The IQ Quattro X scanner series focuses on high-quality results for everyday scanning projects and provides sharp, clear images on the most detailed documents. The IQ Quattro X, available in 36- and 44-inch widths, is recommended for high-quality scans or copies of large GIS maps, site plans, engineering drawings, blueprints, architectural renderings, and many other technical documents.

The HD Ultra X is the market’s most efficient and flexible large format scanner for technical experts, graphical professionals, archivists, reprographic shops, and more. The powerhouse large format scanner captures every detail of maps, drawings, posters, newspapers, or fine art at a record speed of 17.8 ips. The HD Ultra X is a CCD-based scanner and comes in 36-, 42-, and 60-inch widths.
